RE: Utility company stranded cost

I am writing you to request that you study the Utility companies stranded cost issue. The concern that I have is that the consumer will end up absorbing the cost of mistakes, poor management, higher cost due to less volume etc.. Also as a consumer possibly not participating in the competitive market I do not want to absorb any of these cost.

I feel as though if this concept is going to come into force that it should benefit consumers not control them.

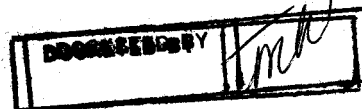

Thank you:

Bill Sanborn
